REGIONAL STAY-AT-HOME ORDER FOR SANTA BARBARA COUNTY
BEGINS AT 11:59 P.M. ON SUNDAY, DECEMBER 6, 2020
Southern California Region Meets Threshold to Launch Stay-At-Home Order

(SANTA BARBARA, Calif.) – Regional Stay-at-Home Order for Santa Barbara County will take effect on Sunday, December 6, 2020 at 11:59 p.m. and is expected to remain in place for at least three weeks before re-evaluation by the State the week of December 28, 2020.

Late last night, the State health officials notified Santa Barbara County Public Health Department that the Southern California Region had fallen below 15% ICU capacity triggering the Regional Stay-at-Home Order for the County of Santa Barbara.

Following the new state regional framework, Santa Barbara County is required to move into a new Stay-at-Home order when the Southern California region drops below a 15% ICU bed capacity. According to the new framework, any region with less than a 15% ICU bed capacity will be required to enter this order. The Southern California region was at a 13.1% ICU bed capacity on December 4, 2020, and is projected to be at 12.5% on December 5, 2020.

“I am dismayed, but not surprised, that the ICU capacity decreased so drastically and quickly in the Southern California region. The sharp decrease in ICU capacity is a consequence of the increasing case rates we have been seeing throughout the state and region, shared Van Do-Reynoso, Public Health Director for Santa Barbara County.
